

25th Combat Aviation Brigade Commander's Intent

Central to my commander's intent is maintaining a combat ready aviation brigade that can safely deploy, survive, fight and win as an air-ground team in any environment. Critical to this intent are the following key tasks:

1. Develop disciplined, physically fit, well-trained and professional combat Soldiers.
2. Train mentally and physically tough, tactically and technically proficient leaders that are empowered and trained to execute decentralized operations in a strategic environment.
3. Ensure someone is in charge of everything we do so standards are known, trained and adhered to; allowing safe, successful mission accomplishment under the most demanding conditions.
4. Train as a team of teams that can maneuver, shoot, communicate and execute battle drills to standard as an air-ground team in a high tempo combat environment.
5. Develop lethal and agile teams and platoons focused on supporting the Soldier on the ground.
6. Maintain and sustain combat power to enable the brigade to provide maximum resources in support of the ground commander.
7. Maintain a command climate with predictability, where Soldiers and leaders enjoy what they are doing, families are cared for and professional growth occurs.

The end state of my intent is to have a team of proud, aggressive professionals who are masters of the fundamentals and focused on providing lethal and agile aviation support that enables successful ground combat operations in the most demanding environments.
